

Q: does this statement true or wrong (passive transport uses energy whereas active movement consumes energy in the form of ATP) and how can it be correct

A: the statement is wrong. Active transport requires ATP as a source of energy, whereas passive transport needs only heat energy to support diffusion.