

Answer on Question #63415, Biology, Molecular Biology

Bindin is an insoluble protein coating the sperm acrosome process and mediating the adhesion of sperm to sea urchin eggs.(PMC)

Before the acrosomal reaction ever happened where was Bindin located?

Answer

In the intact spermatozoid, bindin is located at the intra-acrosomal part of the acrosome membrane

