

Hydride ions (H^-) are well-known to chemists, but being stronger proton-acceptors than water, they react with water to form strongly alkaline solutions. So it's not possible to find H^- in solution. Free hydride anions exist only under extreme conditions and are not invoked for homogeneous solution.