

Answer on Question#73960 – Chemistry – Organic chemistry

Question: Wurtz reaction is not very useful when two different alkyl halides are used

Answer:

Three possible compounds can be formed when two different alkyl halides are used. So, the yield of the target product cannot be more than 33.33%.

Besides the product and by-products can have similar physical properties and it can be difficult to separate them.

Answer provided by AssignmentExpert.com