

Answer on Question #38250 – Economics - Microeconomics

Assuming that cigarettes have a very inelastic demand, the percentage increase in price will be much more higher than the decrease in quantity consumed. So, the total revenue from the taxes will rise with the rise of the price.