

Answer on Question #55127 – Math – Statistics and Probability

True or False? Justify.

If the correlation coefficient is zero, then the relationship between Y and X is positively linear.

Solution

If the correlation coefficient is zero, there is no correlation between Y and X. The relationship between Y and X is positively linear when the correlation coefficient is positive value.

Answer: False.