

Why fan moves in a particular direction?

Answer: Because the direction of propeller rotation determines the air flow direction, created by fan. In general, the air flow direction depends from the inclination angle of the propeller blades relatively to the plane of propeller and from the direction of propeller rotation.