

A liquid does not wet a solid surface if the angle of contact for given pair of liquid and solid surfaces is

Contact angle θ is the angle, measured through the liquid, where a liquid interface meets a solid surface. If the liquid contact angle is larger than 90° , the solid surface is considered hydrophobic (liquid does not wet a solid).

