

Answer on Question #46858, Physics, Optics

How is linear polarized light converted into circular polarize light

Difference between linear and circular polarization is in the phase difference between electric and magnetic field in electromagnetic wave. The most common way of producing circular polarization from linear is using quarter-wave plate which changes phase between electric and magnetic field.