

Answer on question #51918, Physics, Field Theory

Question A large and a small container of water with the same temperature have

- the same total amounts of internal energy.
- the same amounts of internal and external energy.
- different amounts of heat.
- the same amounts of all forms of energy.

Solution A large and a small container of water with the same temperature have different amounts of heat.

<http://www.AssignmentExpert.com/>