

Answer on Question#52091 - Physics - Electric Circuits

Why does current flow in opposite direction to the flow of electron?

Answer: since the electric charge of electrons is negative and the flow of current is defined as a flow of the positive charges, the flow of current is opposite to the flow of electrons.

<http://www.AssignmentExpert.com/>